By Stevenson, Wong & Co.

In association with | AllBright Law Offices | 锦天城律师事务所

As a dynamic, forward-looking law firm, Stevenson, Wong & Co. provides effective solutions for clients on different business and legal issues.

Executive Summary

China's 'One belt one road' ('OBOR') initiative was first introduced by President Xi Jinping during his visits to Central and Southeast Asia in September and October 2013. OBOR focuses on connectivity and cooperation among countries along two main routes, the land-based 'Silk road economic belt' and oceangoing 'Maritime silk road' which run through Asia, Europe and Africa. The strategy seeks to promote cooperation between countries in those continents and is also prompted by China's effort and initiative to alleviate China's overproduction in areas such as steel manufacturing and infrastructure construction.

In 2016 Stevenson, Wong & Co., as one of the leading firms in Hong Kong, established a OBOR Legal Service Centre. By virtue of our association with AllBright Law offices, one of the leading full service law firms in PRC and global network with INTERLAW, an international organization that provides access to independent law firms in more than 150 cities around the world, Stevenson, Wong & Co. has a global platform to help its clients solve legal issues and achieve their objectives. The OBOR Legal Service Centre has been set up to help clients with legal advice and investment decisions when doing business within and between the OBOR countries in Southeast Asia, a strategically important region under the OBOR initiative. Led by the firm's senior partners and experienced lawyers, the OBOR Legal Service Centre of Stevenson, Wong & Co. has invited six law firms based in OBOR participating Southeast Asia countries to collaboratively provide assistance to clients. They are: Blumenthal, Richter & Sumet of Thailand, Colin Ng & Partners LLP (CNP) of Singapore, Lee Hishammuddin Allen & Gledhill of Malaysia, Mochtar Karuwin Komar of Indonesia, Quasha, Ancheta, Peña & Nolasco of The Philippines and Vision & Associates of Vietnam. Each firm is a leading independent law firm in their respective jurisdiction providing a comprehensive range of services and enjoying a high reputation among their clients.

The mission of the Southeast Asia Legal Service Centre of Stevenson, Wong & Co. is to provide efficient legal services to clients seeking opportunities for participation in or investment advice about OBOR related projects in Southeast Asia utilising the accumulated knowledge and experience of all participating law firms.

‘One Belt, One Road’ in a nutshell

Background of the ancient Silk Road

More than two millennia ago the diligent and courageous people of Eurasia explored and opened up several routes of trade and cultural exchanges that linked the major civilizations of Asia, Europe and Africa, collectively called the Silk Road by later generations. For thousands of years, the Silk Road Spirit has been passed from generation to generation, promoting the progress of human civilization, and contributing greatly to the prosperity of the countries along the Silk Road. In the 21st century, in a new era marked by the theme of peace, development, cooperation and mutual benefit, it is important to carry on the Silk Road Spirit in face of the weak recovery of the global economy, and complex international and regional situations.

The ‘One Road One Belt’ national strategy

As a result, in late 2013, President Xi Jinping raised the initiatives of the Silk Road Economic Belt and the 21st Century Maritime Silk Road (‘One Belt One Road’ or ‘OBOR’), which have attracted attention from all over the world.

The OBOR Initiative is a systematic project, to be jointly built through consultation to meet the interests of all countries along the Belt and the Road. Details released so far by China’s official media outlets show that the “Belt” is a planned network of overland road and rail routes, oil and natural gas pipelines, and other infrastructure projects that will stretch from Xi’an in central China, through Central Asia, and ultimately reach as far as Moscow, Rotterdam, and Venice. And “Road” has its maritime equivalent: a network of planned ports and other coastal infrastructure projects that dot the map from South and Southeast Asia to East Africa and the northern Mediterranean Sea.

In order to further promote the implementation of OBOR, in 2015, the Chinese government drafted and published the Vision and Actions on Jointly Building Silk Road Economic Belt and 21st Century Maritime Silk Road (‘Visions and Actions Plan’) to systematically introduce the program and its scope. Planning includes efforts that extend well beyond infrastructure construction, such as promoting greater financial integration and use of the RMB by foreign countries, creating an “Information Silk Road” linking regional information and communications technology networks, and lowering barriers to cross-border trade and investment in the region. New regional institutions, such as the $ 100 billion Asia Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB) and $ 40 billion New Silk Road Fund (NSRF), are also designed in part to complement and support the Belt and Road's development.

A number of Chinese companies have already started their global expansion and cooperation with countries under the OBOR initiative. Projects in manufacturing, construction, and import and export trade have been launched in relevant OBOR countries; new strategic cooperations have been announced, and new sites have been established.

Furthermore, the Chinese government have continued to complement regulatory and diplomatic foundations to support the OBOR initiative. Domestically, under the structure of the Visions and Actions Plan, 2015 witnessed other regulatory agencies issuing new supporting rules and regulations. Latest regulations include the National State Administration of Taxation releasing the 'Notice Regarding the Tax Services and Administration to Implement the Development Strategy of the 'One Belt One Road'' and improvements contemplated for the OBOR route and the Ministry of Transport drafting supporting administrative regulations. In addition, some Chinese provinces have also published local guidance notes regarding the OBOR initiative; examples include Guangdong Province in June 2015, Hunan Province in August, and Henan Province in December. The plans stressed the geographical benefits and comparative advantages of each province.

At international level, the Chinese Foreign Ministry have been actively interacting with relevant counterparties along the OBOR; joint international agreements or memoranda have been issued with countries as diverse as India, Hungary, Kazakhstan and Russia.

Successfully utilising OBOR opportunities

With both domestic and international initiatives, a large portion of China's future foreign investment and trade are expected to take place in OBOR countries. Key industries for the OBOR initiative include: infrastructure construction, energy and power; transportation and logistics; science and innovative research; and financial development. Success of this initiative requires co-operation between Chinese enterprises and foreign counterparties in a raft of sectors and regions, covering small scale trade and investment, to the delivery of large scale multi-jurisdictional game-changing infrastructure.

The OBOR Legal Service Centre

Strategic Significance of Southeast Asia

Under the structure of Visions and Actions Plan, Southeast Asia is a crucial area of the Initiative. Developing the infrastructure of the countries along the route is a key priority. The area has rich resources but lacks the necessary funds for construction, which has further encumbered its economic development, financial markets and advancement of industry.

The OBOR Initiative strives to promote the infrastructure, technology and investment opportunities in Southeast Asia. By giving full play to its geographic advantage, China seeks to speed up the opening-up and development of this region, creating new systems and mechanisms of economy, and step up scientific and technological innovation. Border trade, tourism and culture cooperation will also be greatly promoted.

The Vision and Mission of OBOR Legal Service Centre

Stevenson, Wong & Co.'s OBOR Legal Service Centre was established with the vision to provide Hong Kong and Chinese enterprises who wish to invest in Southeast Asia countries alongside the OBOR with comprehensive and efficient legal services.

Geographically, Hong Kong is one of the cities closest to Southeast Asia. Culturally, Hong Kong also shares a strong connection with this region; many Chinese emigrants in Southeast Asia still speak Cantonese. Therefore, both the physical closeness and the similarities in culture and customs enable Stevenson, Wong & Co. to be more presentable, more persuasive and more efficient in assisting in negotiations with business partners, stakeholders, or government agencies from Southeast Asia.

Headed by the firm's senior partners, the OBOR Legal Service Centre consists of lawyers who have rich experience in Banking & Finance, Corporate Finance, China Practice, FDI and Dispute Resolution. Also, the service centre will cooperate with six leading law firms in their respective regions of Southeast Asia namely, Blumenthal, Richter & Sumet, Thailand, Colin Ng & Partners LLP (CNP), Singapore, Lee Hishammuddin Allen & Gledhill, Malaysia, Mochtar Karuwin Komar, Indonesia, Quasha, Ancheta, Peña & Nolasco, Philippines, Vision & Associates, Vietnam.

The potential for cross-border collaborations is vast. Legal professionals with multi-jurisdictional experience and an international network will be in great demand. The firm is one of the oldest law firms in the Philippines. It was established 1950 by William H. Quasha, an American. He was the last foreigner allowed to practice law in the Philippines. He died in 1996.

The firm provides a wide range of legal services with emphasis on corporate and investment law, joint venture, mergers and acquisition, contracts, taxation, labor and employment, immigration, banking, insurance, natural resources, intellectual property, litigation and appellate court practice.

It is the Philippine member of INTERLAW, an international association of independent law firms in all major business centers in the world. The member firms want to have a global reach but remain independent.

The firm prides itself with partners who know the client's business, are accessible and have a comprehensive knowledge of the legal and regulatory environment. The partners are always mindful and in touch with the political climate and key personalities. Its client list range from Philippines corporations with purely local activities to major Philippine and multinational corporations. Its clients' business interest span almost all aspects of commerce and industry. When appropriate, the firm also employs "associated lawyers" who are former lawyers of the firm for specific purposes.

For the One Belt-One Road-Southeast Asia Legal Service Centre project, the suggested contacts are Alfredo Pio De Roda, Conrado S. Dar Santos, Joel Raymond R. Ayson, Janice P. Ramirez, cc: Nilo B. Peña.
